The new National Curriculum offers exciting opportunities for teachers to discover the potential of their school grounds or local park for teaching and learning.

This course is suitable for teachers who would like to expand their teaching beyond the classroom and use the wealth of resources in their local area to encourage active learning and discovery.

There will be the opportunity to develop your own outdoor experiences through taking part in a range of practical group activities that can be transferred to an outdoor area local to your school. We will also be covering the practicalities and logistics of taking a group outside.

The course will be presented by experienced environmental educators. We will be based in the fantastic new Holland Park Ecology Centre and make use of the beautiful surrounding park and wooded Wildlife Area.

The course is ideal for primary science and geography teachers.

Course cost: £90 for RBKC, LBHF and WCC teachers, £120 for teachers from other boroughs. Lunch, hot drinks and refreshments will be provided.
